Emission control suspension rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today rejected a move designed to suspend automobile emission control device requirements for much of the nation because of the energy crisis.

By 210 to 180, it defeated an emergency energy bill amendment, offered by Rep. Louis C. Wyman, R-N.H., which would have made roughly three-fourths of America's autos free from such controls.

Wyman maintained that controls waste scarce gasoline. He said his amendment would save more fuel than any other provision in the comprehensive energy-saving legislation. But Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., chairman of the Public Health and Environment subcommittee, said the amendment would "completely abolish what progress has been made" to clean

The action came as the House began to speed its work, facing amendments and a leadership threat to hold a Saturday session if necessary to finish the bill.

A move was expected in an effort to nullify the effect of an antibusing provision that the House accepted earlier.

The House began its third day of decisions by voting 223 to 170 to retain a section of the bill that would let retail and service firms voluntarily agree among themselves to limit their operating hours, adjust delivery schedules and take other energy-saving steps. These actions would be exempt from antitrust laws.

In a move sponsors call energy-saving and opponents term racist, the House had voted Thursday to ban allocations of scarce fuel for busing children past neighborhood schools. This ban would begin in the next school year.

The energy crisis continued to boil elsewhere in the country and overseas.

The head of the Federal Energy Office. William E. Simon, said he would order reduced lighting in commercial and industrial buildings as soon as he receives congressional authority to do so. Simon, unveiling new mandatory energy conservation steps, said no decision had been made on whether to ration gasoline.

Children 12 years old and younger are invited to attend the party at the Municipal building for a chat with Santa. Jaycees and councilmen discuss full-time mayor

By MARY LOU VOSSMEYER Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Opinions on the much-debated full-time mayor proposal were tossed about freely Thursday night at a meeting of the Sedalia vcees. City Council members were invited to the dinnermeeting to discuss the council's plans regarding a full-time

Jaycee Jim Reed Jr. said the Jaycees decided to pursue the matter because they "were concerned that a good percentage voted for a full-time mayor (in the April 1 advisory election) and nothing was done about it."

Members of a Jaycee committee for a full-time mayor appeared before the City Council Nov. 20, to ask the council what action was planned regarding the matter. In response to the Javcees' concern, the council asked the Jacyce committee to submit a recommended salary for a full-time mayor. Reed said the committee arrived at a monthly salary of $1,400 based on average salaries of full-time mayors in cities the same size as expressed their opinion of the full-time mayor proposal and time was allowed for questions from Jaycees.

Each of the six council members present at the meeting

Fourth Ward Democrat Lee Garrison told the group he did not see a need for a full-time mayor. However, Garrison said he surveyed his ward after the April election and found a small majority in favor of a full-time mayor. He has since proposed an ordinance requesting that a full-time mayor receive a salary of $800 a month and spend at least 40 hours a week toward his duties as mayor with at least four hours a day in his office.

Third Ward Democrat Carl Franklin said, "There's no ordinance against a full-time mayor. . . I don't think a member on the council would object to a full-time mayor." Franklin in the past has objected to any provision prohibiting such a person from holding another job.

Second Ward Democrat Raymond Bales said, "I've stated my opinion before...and I haven't seen any reason for a full-time

EDF appeals ruling on Truman Dam project

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — A Nov. 8 ruling by U. S. District Judge John W. Oliver that the Environmental Defense Fund (EDF) had not shown sufficient cause to stop construction on the Harry S. Truman Dam and Reservoir near Warsaw Thursday was appealed by the EDF.

In a prepared statement released by the Missouri Chapter of the Wildlife Society, Rollin Sparrowe, president, said, "Dissatisfied with a recent decision in federal court in Kansas City, these groups (the Wildlife Society, EDF and several Osage River landowners) have appealed to the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis for a full review of the final environmental impact statement" filed by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Sparrowe said, "Basic issues include the uneconomical hydropower unit, unfounded claims of economic gain through recreational and other development, and a general failure to discuss and consider alternatives to various flood control and other components of the project.

Judge Oliver earlier ordered the Army Engineers to hold back on some phases of the project while he studied the evidence in a suit started by the EDF in March, 1972. The dam project, originally named Kaysinger Bluff, is about one third complete on the Osage River. The current cost estimate on the work is $308 million and the new completion date is 1980.

In September, the U.S. Court of Appeals remanded to the district court in Kansas City an appeal filed by the EDF in 1972 to enjoin the Corps of Engineers from letting

The latter ruling is the basis of the appeal filed Thursday.

Sadat says Egypt will not negotiate

By ELIAS ANTAR Associated Press Writer

President Anwar Sadat said today Egypt will not negotiate directly with Israel at the Middle East peace conference.

He told newsmen in Cairo that Egypt was willing to be in the same room with Israeli representatives, "but if you are talking about direct negotiations, the answer is no.

He also said he hoped the two sides would be able to bargain seriously about disengagement of Egyptian and Israeli forces before Christmas.

Sadat spoke after meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for the second

where in talks with King Faisal he hopes to ease the Arab oil embargo, Cairo's official Middle East News Agency said.

Kissinger's second session with Sadat followed a nighttime communication between the secretary and President Nixon in Washington and talks in Cairo with the Soviet, British and French ambassadors.

It was learned that the head of the U.S. delegation to the Geneva peace talks will be Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, 79, the ambassador at large who has been a top trouble shooter for several presidents.

U.S. officials indicated Kissinger will attend the ceremonial start of the talks Tuesday but will leave Geneva for Paris on the second day. Bunker and a team of officials will then represent the United States at the parley

Members of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's delegation said today there was a "better than 50-50 chance" the Arabs will lift their oil embargo next month.

They said they expect Israel and Egypt to be negotiating a disengagement of their armies on the Suez front by that time.

They made the statement on arrival in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, from Cairo.

their supply of oil to Western Europe unless the Europeans give them more vigorous support against Israel. The French government would also like an exclusive. long-term arrangement under which Western Europe would help the Arabs industrialize in return for guaranteed fuel supplies.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger presented an American alternative in a speech Wednesday in London. He called for Western Europe and Japan to join the United States and Canada in an Energy Action Group to conserve the fuel they have, launch a crash program to develop new sources of energy and encourage the present producers of fuel - including the Arabs — to increase supplies.

The energy crisis is expected to increase unemployment from 2 million to 4 million people by next year in the nine Common Market countries. The new unemployed will include many skilled workers accustomed to a high living standard.

The Common Market countries -Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark and Ireland - have already shown some unity over the oil issue, calling in a joint statement Nov. 6 for Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab lands.

But they have shown no evidence of cooperating to ease the oil squeeze the Arabs are putting on the Netherlands because of Dutch support of Israel.

The 100 monks of Conception Abbey began this weekend a year-long observance of the founding of the monastery.

As the monks enter their second century, they represent one of the changes in the Roman Catholic Church resulting from Vatican II. Activities of the monastery now range from farming a square mile of land to operation of Printery Press, the main source of revenue of the abbey. There is a dairy herd, a beef herd and an orchard, with Conception monks scattered at various points.

"I must disassociate myself from the over-all impression created by the article on priests' dating. It makes it seem that many American priests are abusing their vow of celibacy and leading sleazy and hypocritical lives.

Family farm warning issued by NFO official

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - A National Farmers Organization official warned Thursday that family farms will lose cattle. hogs and dairy operations to giant corporate producers unless farmers join the NFO's efforts to block the large organ-

Charles L. Frazier, the group's Washington lobbyist, told delegates from 48 states attending the NFO convention here that the Justice Department has been asked to investigate a planned millionhead hog operation in northeast Missouri.

He said the operation may violate the Family Farm Antitrust Act if it includes all the steps from production to slaughter and marketing. Such operations, he said, would mean the nation's milk will be produced in 5,000-10,000-head herds. and beef production would follow the same pattern.

The competition would drive the traditional family farm into a corner and ultimately place the consumer at the mercy of monopolistic food production, Frazier

Erhard Pfingsten, another NFO spokesman, told about 8,000 delegates that farmers must pool their commodities for collective bargaining.

"We must block (pool) grain if we're to hold our price," he said. "Can we rely on the government to do it for us?" His audience answered with a resounding

"(U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl) Butz asked farmers to plant crops from fence to tence, and the stupid farmers applauded him," he said. "That's like throwing a drowning man a concrete block and telling him to wait until he hits solid bottom and then walk out," Pfingsten said.

He said "the only way" to improve the farmer's economic condition was to "see that every bushel of grain goes through the NFO. Prices won't stay up unless we block and control production.

He added that his organization doesn't want to create a food shortage, but wants a fair price for farmers' production.

"Now get out there and finish the job. Let's take that price!" he cried, as the cheering crowd rose to its feet.

Today's final session of the convention will elect new officers and national directors. Oren Staley, NFO president, is expected to retain his present position.

Algerian consulate in France bombed

MARSEILLE, France (AP) - A bomb was thrown into the Algerian consulate today, killing 2 persons and injuring 23, about 10 seriously, authorities said.

There is always much tension between French and Arab laborers in Marseille, France's second largest city and its chief Mediterranean port.

The killing of a French bus driver by a berserk Arab set off a wave of attacks on Arabs last summer in which several were killed.

Senate votes end of oil to S.E. Asia

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate has voted to cut off military petroleum shipments to South Vietnam, Cambodia

The 60-33 vote Thursday would deny the Pentagon any money in a $73.3 billion defense appropriation bill for oil export to any Southeast Asian government.

The Senate also accepted a $476 million slash in President Nixon's $1.1-billion budget for military aid in Indochina.

The cuts are subject to change in a House-Senate conference.

Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., who sponsored the petroleum cutoff amendment, told the Senate "I don't propose to see my people in New England suffer from the cold while seeing this oil go out of the country."

He said the Pentagon is shipping the equivalent of 22,000 barrels of oil a day to Vietnam and 1,550 barrels to Cambodia. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said fuel also is going to Laos.

Mansfield and Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., cast the only negative votes in the Senate's 89-2 passage of the military money

The measure is $3.98 billion below President Nixon's budget and $836 million below the total approved by the House last

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., of the Senate Appropriations Committee said that the defense bill is $2.1 billion below last year's appropriation and the lowest in terms of percentage of the total U.S. budget since the Korean war.

He said the "peace dividend" that had been expected to flow from the end of the Vietnam war has been eaten up by "unbridled inflation, the introduction of the all-volunteer concept necessitating higher military pay, the ever-increasing sophistication of weapons, the revaluation he dollar and the energy crisis

The Senate bill restores two weapons systems the House had voted to scrap. The Pentagon's full request of $135 million was allowed for development of an antiballistic missile site defense system for protection of Minuteman missiles. In addition, $16.6 million was earmarked for developing the Navy's Sanguine system for communication with submarines.

Fewer mishaps by-product of slow driving

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) -Fewer accidents, injuries and deaths in Missouri have been a by-product of the campaign to get motorists to drive slower to conserve fuel, the Missouri Highway Patrol reported today.

An 8 foot-by-8-foot plate glass window, valued at $300, at Sagaloff's Gift Shop, 202 South Ohio, was reported broken shortly before 5:30 a.m. Thursday, according to a police report.

To approach council with plan for mural

Representatives of a citizen's art committee, appointed earlier in the year to supervise the acquisition of art for the Municipal Building, will appear before the City Council Monday night to seek funds to pay for a mural in the building, committee member Mrs. R. F. Quigg announced

The proposed mural, Mrs. Quigg said, would be painted on the large exterior wall panels encircling the council chamber on the building's main floor.

'We are, of course, responsible for obtaining art for the entire building, but we decided to concentrate on the mural first," Mrs. Quigg said. "We feel that the mural will be a focal highlight.

Although saying the committee has received inquiries from 12 local and area artists, Mrs. Quigg said no decision on the matter has yet been made "That will be determined by how much money we obtain," she said. "We'll just have to wait and see.' Any council appropriation for the mural, Mrs. Quigg indicated, will hopefully be matched by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, Washington D. C. "I've talked to the director (Brian O'Dougherty) and he indicated our project is a definite possibility for receiving funds," she said. "As soon as we determine how much we can get from the council, we'll get in touch with him.'

Once a definite financial picture develops, Mrs. Quigg indicated, steps will be immediately taken to select the muralist. While indicating that the committee has no pre-determined notion of the mural's theme, Mrs. Quigg said that 'some of the artists we have heard from are representational and some are abstract. No idea has yet been finalized.

'We'll study and review some slides of each artists' work. We hope to do it all in one evening. It may be a long meeting, but we want to get on this as soon as possible."

Despite the committee's desire to begin the project as soon as possible, the group is still mindful of the need for taking all the time that is needed to insure that the project is carried out successfully, Mrs. Quigg said.

"We're really optimistic about the council's action," she said. "We feel sure that they are aware of the importance of

Board members unanimous in decision on candidate

The Sedalia economic development board Monday will recommend to the City Council a candidate to succeed William Hall as city economic development director, board chairman Don Broaddus announced Friday.

Broaddus said the candidate's name and proposed salary would not be announced before the council meeting

The board's decision followed the completion of interviews Dec. 6 and Thursday in which five local persons and one candidate from another Missouri town were questioned.

At Thursday's interview session, two applicants were screened. A third applicant, scheduled to be interviewed, decided not to seek the position, Broaddus

The vote to select the candidate, Broaddus indicated, was unanimous. Board members attending the interview session and voting afterwards were Broaddus, Robert Woolery, Walter Savio, Jack Robinson and Raymond Bales. Absent were Adam Fischer, Louis Hughes, Jesse Robinson, Ira Knox and Robert Hardwick.

While declining to specify the salary which will be recommended, Broaddus did say that it fell "between the $12,600 and $14,400 scale that bill (Hall) worked Broaddus also said the board will recommend that the new director not receive automatic salary increases as Hall did. Rather, he indicated, the board will recommend that any salary hikes be awarded following an annual year-end interview by the board in which the director's activities throughout the year will be summarized and discussed.

Broaddus himself a councilman, expressed optimism over the upcoming council meeting, although noting that the council's recent decision to permit interviewing candidates does not assure that a director will be hired at this time. "I feel reasonably confident about the matter," Broaddus said. "I think particularly that the councilmen (Raymond Bales and Jesse Robinson) who served on the board probably have gained a greater insight into the need for a director:"

Bales and Robinson were not available for comment Friday.

Broaddus indicated the successful candidate, who will not be present at the council meeting, would be contacted Friday. A response is expected in 24 hours, he said.

'Messiah' will be presented Sunday

The fourth annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday at the First Christian Church, it was announced Friday.

councilmen to oversee it (city government)." Wells stressed that he did not want to see the position of mayor turned into a "professional job."

"The office of mayor is not to make a livelihood out of - but to oversee the offices of government," Wells said. One Jaycee pointed out that it would be difficult for a councilman or parttime mayor to oversee city government thoroughly "because they have their own jobs and their own lives" to be concerned

Republican George Dugan Jr. of the Fourth Ward said he would like to see the council present a proposal to the voters in the 1974 spring elections. He said that though this vote could not be binding, "I think everyone (council member) here is man enough" to go by the vote of the people.

Dugan also said a full-time mayor ordinance should require that the majority of the mayor's time be spent in his office. He said there are "too many things that go on in a city that the councilmen and heads of departments don't know about," and that it takes someone at the top to coordinate all of the departments.

'A man who is going to devote most of his time (to being mayor) is going to have to depend on a mayor's salary for a livelihood," Dugan said.

He added that a full-time mayor proposal "is going to definitely have to be put on the ballot next time. Dugan submitted an ordinance to the council in September calling for a full-time mayor who would "devote a major portion of his working day" to elected duties, at a slary of $1,200

First Ward Republican Dan Broaddus agreed with Dugan that someone "at the head" is needed to oversee the city's

"I can't see how a part-time man could do the good a fulltime man could do," Broaddus said.

"I think Sedalia can go far if we have someone there all the time. . . I don't think Sedalia should stand still and not get a fulltime mayor," Broaddus added. Mayor Jerry Jones also was invited to the meeting but was unable to attend, Reed said. Also absent were Second Ward Councilman Ira Knox and First Ward Councilman Jesse The Jaycees took a quick poll of the councilmen at the meeting to determine what each member would consider an appropriate salary for mayor. Garrison suggested $800 a month; Broaddus, $12,000 to $15,000 a year; Franklin, $400 a month. Wells said there would be "plenty of candidates" on a salary of $400 a month, but he would approve a salary as high as $600. Bales indicated he could not determine a definite proposed salary at this time

Reed, who originated the idea of the Jaycees pursuing the issue of a full-time mayor said he thought the meeting with the council was successful in getting the issue "back into the public

"We hope, as a club, that we can see this on the ballot in some form this spring," he added.

Court rules for state in Phillips case

COLUMBIA - A motion to suppress evidence in the case of accused murderer Kim Eugene Phillips was overruled Thursday afternoon in Boone County Circuit Court by Judge John M. Cave.

Phillips' attorney Adam Fischer attempted to get the court to suppress oral and written statements allegedly made by Phillips to law enforcement officers on Aug. 16, the day of his arrest for the strangulation murder of Mrs. Karen Jones, 16, in Sedalia on Aug. 13.

During a Dec. 5 hearing here, Fischer attempted to show that Phillips' constitutional rights had been violated following his arrest by members of the West-Central Missouri Major Case Squad. The dispute centered around whether Phillips asked to consult with an attorney before answering questions put to him during a lie detector test in Lee's Summit on Aug. 16.

In the statement signed by Phillips and introduced as evidence in Pettis County Magistrate Court on Sept. 5, Phillips was quoted as saying he was "the one that had killed her" when told of Mrs. Jones death on Aug. 13 by two friends.

Lafayette County Deputy Sheriff James Donley testified at the Dec. 5 hearing that he witnessed the lie detector test from behind a one-way mirror and that he never heard Phillips specifically request to have an attorney present during questioning.

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax testified that Phillips had "said that he didn't know whether he should talk to a lawyer." But no specific request was made, Fairfax added.

Phillips testified that at least three times he said he would "rather" see an attorney before answering further questions.

Phillips also reportedly signed a waiver of rights before taking the test, indicating that he understood his right to remain

When contacted by The Democrat-Capital Friday morning, Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney said that he "felt thankful" that the motion went in the state's favor and that he felt "much more hopeful knowing that the statements will be admissable.

Phillips remains in the Boone County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond. A February trial date has been set in Boone County Circuit Court.

CMSU funding agreement reached

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - An agreement has been reached to have Central Missouri State University pay back $903,000 in money over-appropriated by the legislature for this fiscal year, House Appropriations Chairman James "Jay"

Russell said Thursday. Russell said the agreement was approved by Budget Director Mark Edelman abd Robert L. James, commissioner of administration.

Russell said the total over-appropriation was $1.7 million, but Central Missouri State would be allowed to keep $850,000 so programs would not have to be cut in the middle of the school year.

The $903,000 will be deducted in the two remaining installments due the school for this fiscal year. CMSU's total appropriation was $12.8 million.

A House appropriations subcommittee and the state auditor's office found that the CMSU enrollment was inflated by about 2,000 students because of counting errors and a mixup over whether continuing education students and off campus students should be counted in figuring total credit hours.

Congress sends DST measure

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress completed action today on legislation that could put the nation on year-around daylight saving time by the end of the second week in January.

Voice votes in both House and Senate sent the measure to the White House for President Nixon's signature. Differing versions were passed earlier in both houses and reworked by a conference committee. If Nixon signs the bill by Sunday, the change could take effect as early as Jan. The bill would require clocks be set ahead one hour on the fourth Sunday after it is signed into law.

Year-round DST is one of the measures requested by President Nixon to help save fuel during the energy crisis. The nation would remain on advanced time through October 1975 under the bill. The President would have the authority to exempt any state if the governor could show that it would work undue hardship or that remaining on standard time during the winter months would save more fuel. States split by two times zones would be allowed to exempt one zone so that the entire state could remain on the same time. bill contains provisions automatically exempting Indiana and

Hawaii. The White House has said that shifting an hour of daylight from the morning to the evening hours could cut back electricity and heating demands by as much as three per cent, particularly in the northern regions of the country. But many supporters of the bill acknowledged they were unsure what effect, if any, the measure would have on the energy crisis.

The nation has not been on year-round DST since World War II.

recreation... He also asserts that Corps predictions ignore the substantial value and potential of the existing unmodified river in its Sparrowe said, "Huge losses of productive wildlife habitat, including a major waterfowl wintering area and the largest known paddlefish spawning area will be eliminated with only token possibilities for reparation to the people of Missouri. Some of the most significant archeological and paleontological sites in North America will be lost forever before they can be investigated. The displacement of more than 2,300 families in the project area is seriously disrupting individual, family and community social systems. The economic effect of the project on local communities is uncertain, and evidence is growing that points to long-range detrimental effects.'

He also said that the existing energy crisis makes "it inconceivable to contrive a development which depends on mass " travel over long distances before there is any possibility of receiving a reasonable return on the public investment." Sparrowe also charges that the Corps' environmental impact study "fails to discuss or develop these factors, is inadequate and does not meet the needs of the National Environmental Policy Act.'

White House tape theory unsupported

By JEFFREY MILLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Technical experts say they cannot support a White House explanation for how 18 minutes of conversation may have been erased from a Watergate tape.

After 150 man-days of study, the experts reported Thursday that a high-intensity lamp and electric typewriter on the desk of President Nixon's secretary is not a likely cause. The White House had advanced that theo-

The experts are now turning their search for the cause of the 18-minute gap to the Uherbrand recorder used by secretary Rose Mary Woods in transcribing the tape.

White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt testified that he nearduplicated the buzz by recording a tape at the secretary's desk with the typewriter and lamp on, but that his own experts were not able to do so.

However, the experts approved by both the White House and the Watergate prosecution said tests "made with sophisticated instruments" had failed to confirm that theory.

The 18-minute gap is in a tape of a June 20, 1972 conversation between Nixon and H.R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff.

The White House analysis said the conversation related primarily to scheduling and travel. However, Haldeman's notes of the meeting indicate the Watergate break-in of three days earlier was discussed.

The portion Watergate prosecutors believe may contain the Watergate discussion is not on the parts of the tape that can be made-out.

Truck stop blocked in Southern Illinois

TROY, Ill. (AP) — The protest shutdown by independent truck drivers reached Southern Illinois late Thursday night as 85 tractor-trailers clogged a truck stop at Troy, Ill.

"There's been no violence. In fact these truckers are a fine group of gentlemen," said Norman Brown, Troy police chief. He met for about two hours with the manager of the Union 76 Truck Plaza at Interstate 55-70 and with a group of independent truck drivers

They have blocked off two of the three entrances to the truck stop and are trying to talk other drivers into joining them," Brown said.

A spokesman for the independent drivers. Steve Hendrix of Wright City, Mo., said that about 50 drivers were persuaded into stopping their runs. He said that those shutting down rigs were both independent and company drivers, some of them represented by the Teamsters union

Securities industry acts lost

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Like a lot of blue chip stocks, the securities industry seems to have lost its sense of direction, its ability to determine which is the way to progress, which to Colloquially speaking, someone might say it's lost its understanding of which end is up. and at a very important time not only for its own industry, but for all endeavors that rely on capital.

Says Ray Garrett Jr., chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, the primary regulator of the industry:

"At a time when its role in the formation of capital appears to be more critical than at any time one can recall, the securities industry is in a state of confusion and bickering, with morale low.

The consolidated ticker tape which was to report transactions for stocks wherever they were traded, a substitute for various tickers reporting trades for just one exchange, is still in

The original timetable called for the tape to be operative now, but instead the various exchanges are only reaching agreement on ground rules. And after that they have to resolve differences with federal regulators.

After bitter infighting and negotiating with the SEC, it was finally decreed that the industry would drop fixed commission rates on all transactions by April 30, 1975. Now that determination is being

become more efficient and imaginative and, consequently, provide them with opportunities for profits. But, while they are convinced of the goodness of that system for others, the brokers aren't sure it's for them. Currently, the New York Stock Exchange is arguing that proposed legislation threatens to destroy the individual stock exchanges because it would permit trading of listed stocks outside of exchange floors.

The alternative would be to kill the third market by making brokers join an exchange and conduct their trading through that exchange. But, the SEC says, that would mean less competition, a return to monopoly conditions

Speaking a few weeks ago to the Securities Industry Association. Garrett told them that it "cannot re-create the happy world of the past. "There is only one way to go," he said, "and those who cannot adjust to the future, for whatever reason, will have to drop out. Those are harsh words; but, then, these are harsh times.

Will offer only one diploma in the future

One of the Smith-Cotton High School curriculum changes approved by the Board of Education Tuesday night includes a change in the type of diploma awarded to graduating

Smith-Cotton principal Earl Finley said only one general diploma will be offered to future graduates, as opposed to the general and scholastic diplomas previously offered The scholastic diploma was awarded to students whose curriculum placed emphasis on mathematics and science. The general diploma was awarded to students who completed a more generalized liberal arts program.

A 22-member committee organized to evaluate the school's graduation requirements, had considered adding a third vocational diploma for students desiring to specialize in mechanical or vocational areas. However, the committee finally recommended to the board that Smith-Cotton return to a onediploma program.

Finley explained that under this program, a single general diploma would be awarded to all graduates regardless of their field of study.

Mandatory blood test is blessing

Dear Ann Landers: I am responding to "100 Per Cent American," who believes a mandatory blood test for obtaining a marriage license is 'unconstitutional, and an invasion of privacy." The person who wrote that letter is 100 per cent foolish.

We are not all perfect angels. Sometimes things happen that are completely out of character. Never in a million years would I have believed that I would pick up a venereal disease. Dear Dr. Lamb — I read in an article in a magazine about how high blood pressure is killing people. What I want to know is how high blood pressure comes

Dear Reader - Would you believe that in most instances we really don't know? Oh, we understand the mechanism. The small arteries clamp down and it works just like turning off the faucets in a plumbing system. As long as the heart pumps the same amount of blood and the arteries are smaller, the pressure goes up. But, we don't know, in most cases, why the arteries clamp down to begin with.

In rare cases it is from kidney disease. It can be caused by abnormal hormone formation in the tiny adrenal gland that rests above each kidney, but there are only a portion of the people who have these problems.

It follows that in the vast majority of people, we must treat their high blood pressure as a finding and not correct the real cause. That is why the treatment is less than satisfactory. Although I must say it is many times better than when I first started treating high blood pressure patients.

We do know that staying slim, avoiding excessive amounts of salt and not eating too much fats, particularly saturated fat, all helps. In other instances, we need to use medicines that help to open the arteries that have closed too tightly.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I recently read your comments related to smoking, and I cannot help thinking what an innocent you

According to the Agriculture Department, farmers this season averaged $5.79 per bushel for durum wheat produced in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and California. The 1972 average was $1.93 per bushel.

Durum represents a small part of the over-all wheat produced by the United States but has been in huge demand from domestic food prcessors as well as for export.

Total 1973 durum production was about 84.8 million bushels. with about 76 million of it harvested in North Dakota. Farmers there received an average of $5.80 per bushel this year, compared with $1.94 in 1972 and $1.31 in 1971, according to USDA analysts.

In terms of total value, the North Dakota durum crop was worth $440.6 million this year against $127 million in 1972 and $107.5 million in 1971.

Kansas, by comparison, grows winter wheat used for many purposes but mostly for bread. Its crop, a record 384.8 million bushels, averaged $3.60 per bushel for a total value of more than $1.38 billion.

Another winter wheat leader, Oklahoma, produced a record 157.8 million bushels worth $3.50 per bushel on the market or $552.3 million. Other durum wheat growers also got record prices, including: Minnesota $5.90 per bushel and a total of $12.3 million; South Dakota $5.80 and $15.6 million; and Montana $5.60 and $22.4 million. California, although a minor producer, averaged the most at $6.50 per bushel and a total value of $650,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department wants the nation's oats crop to put on a little weight.

Specifically, officials proposed Wednesday changing federal standards for the grain so that higher test weights per bushel can be used for determining quality grades

For example, oats can now qualify as Grade No. 1 under federal standards if the grain has a test weight of 34 pounds per bushel. Under the proposal the minimum weight would have to be 36 pounds.

Grade No. 2, currently a minimum of 32 pounds, would have to weigh at least 33 pounds. A grade of "Extra Heavy" would have to weigh at least 40 pounds per bushel instead of the present 38. The proposal, open for public comment until Jan. 31, also would eliminate names of oats classes such as white, red, gray, black and mixed. Officials said it has been "increasingly difficult" to determine oats classes visually.

A spokesman for the Agricultural Marketing Service said the new weight proposals were offered to bring standards in line with modern types of oats which weigh more than the grain raised when current regulations were set.

Most oats grown now, he said, weigh 37 to 38 pounds per bushel. The department tried to increase oats weight standards sharply about 15 years ago but settled for only slight increases after many producers, particularly in the southeast, complained the grain they raised was lighter.

Between 1957-59 and August 1971, the price of food purchased for use at home rose 33

No gain for Nixon in airing finances

WASHINGTON - What a pitifully demeaning thing - for Richard M. Nixon and for the country — that the President's principal occupation nowadays is trying to prove that he is "not a crook.

Life in the Oval Of-

has become little more than one frantic exer-

resignation - with criminal proceedings possibly to follow

The President's desperation was demonstrated anew in his decision to make public a mass of documents about his income tax payments since he moved into the White House. Mr. Nixon may have dreamed that the dark clouds around him would evaporate if he disproved the more inflammatory allegations about his financial affairs. He must know by now that the public is far more outraged by what the documents confirmed than by what he thinks they disproved.

Are people talking about the fact that despite allegations to the contrary the President's daughter, Tricia, really did pay her share of taxes on profits from a Florida land deal? No, they are asking with what sense of propriety Mr. Nixon, while vice president, permitted the head of a pharmaceutical firm (Elmer Bobst) to set up a trust fund that netted Tricia more

Is anyone talking about the fact that Mr. Nixon's friend Bebe Rebozo doesn't manage a million-dollar trust fund for the President? No, they're talking about the documents showing that in his quest to leave the presidency as a millionaire,

Richard Nixon strained every notion of propriety, stretched every legal limit of the law, crawled through every loophole his lawyers could find, exploited every legalism he could discover - and wound up paying a piddling 6.5 per cent ($72,682) in taxes on $1,122,266.39 in income

There is hardly a butcher, cab driver, factory worker or household maid in America who wouldn't settle for paying only 6.5 per cent in income taxes.

Yet, can we have it both ways? If we insist that the President is not above the law when it comes to yielding evidence relating to Watergate crimes, how can we say he must stand above the tax laws and not use the tax-saving parts of the law that exploited his office to take legal shortcuts which even tax-wise wealthy Americans do not dare to take

Consider the matter of deducting expenses at one's residence when it is used partly for business. Doctors, dentists. lawyers, journalists, novelists do it, and they normally claim 15 to 25 per cent of the outlays for utilities, maintenance. insurance, depreciation as a business expense.

What galls people in the case of Mr. Nixon is that he deducted the entire cost of maintaining one of his two houses at Key Biscayne, plus a fourth of the maintenance expenses of his San Celemente home.

He claimed these deductions after the federal government has spent $1,150,000 directly to improve his properties and grounds at Key Biscayne and San Clemente plus more than $8 million more for "communications support" and office facilities at the two compounds.

They don't impeach Presidents for unmitigated gall, though Still. Mr. Nixon knew that the tax data would provoke charges of impropriety That is why he took the unusual step of asking a joint congressional committee dominated by Democrats to tell him whether he cut all the corners properly, or whether he must pay more taxes. Perhaps he figures the men on the committee have used so many loopholes that they are morally bound to "clear" him.

But that congressional proceeding will just pile new pressures and worries on topassar of Mr. Nixon's Watergate strains. When the public is so outraged over Mr. Nixon's taxes, those congressmen will not take them political risk of bailing him out. They will push him even faster toward a resignation this observer believes will come before the next Fourth of July.

Making out the gift list

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Now is that wonderful time of year when we savor all of the traditions and various fun things of the Christmas season. Around our house one of the merriest times is making out the Christmas list.

The other night my wife and I gathered around the fire, got out our pads and pencils and put on our thinking caps. "Well, what's at the head of your list?" I

"This year I think we ought to fix the garbage disposal, it's been broken for five months.

"I was thinking more in terms of the furance this year," I said, "we fixed the garbage disposal last Christmas.

"Yes, but it broke again."

I wrote down garbage disposal and put a question mark after it.

"As a second choice," my wife said, "we could always get the TV set worked on. The roll bar makes everyone look like Plastic Man.

"Didn't I call a repairman on that last spring?" I asked. "Yes, I remember now The fourth time I called him I made him swear on his mother's grave that he would really come out."

"He never made it," my wife said

I told her to put the TV set down on her

"What else were you thinking about?" I "There's always the broken door bell.

toaster oven and leaking shower head. But I guess I could live without the door bell for another five years if need be.'

I made a note of the toaster oven and shower head. "Okay, what about the

"The lamp is still busted in the front bedroom, and two of Ricky's stereo speakers are dead." "Right-o." I put them both down.

"Maybe we could fix a couple of smaller things for both of them as well." I suggested. "Just repairing one item apiece" doesn't seem like much for Christmas.

"I was going to get the motorcycle fixed, for Ricky's birthday," my wife replied.

We agreed that the desk top could be refinished where Bobby's aquarium leaked; all summer, and maybe Ricky's highintensity desk lamp could be rewired, both by Santa Claus.

"Now how about you," I asked softly,

'you must want something for yourself." "Well, I WAS kind of thinking of a new gasket for the kitchen sink." 'But I thought we called a plumber to fix that last summer."

Having passed safely through the asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter and survived the fantastically strong zone of radiation it reported around the giant planet, the probe is expected to encounter nothing but empty space the rest of the way.

There could be surprises, of course; man's first, brief era of space exploration has been full of surprises. Scientists will continue to track Pioneer 10 until its steadily fading radio beacon finally dies in 1977.

It is impossible to comprehend the vast distances involved in Pioneer's space odyssey. It covered 620 million miles in its 21several billion more miles before (NEA)

'Christmas tree bill' draped by lobbyists

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - As a cloak to conceal their annual Christmas chiseling, the lobbyists this year are using a bill that is supposed to benefit the families of men missing in Indochina.

Most members of Congress would like to give these anguished families a tax break as a Christmas present. But hidden in the wrappings are some far richer benefits for oil companies, mining firms, auto dealers and distillers.

The lobbyists have learned that the Christmas season is the best time to slip special tax benefits through Congress. The legislators are so impatient to adjourn and head for home that they don't always bother to scrutinize the fine print.

During the end-of-the-season rush, the action is also too fast for the public to follow and, usually, the lobbyist's hand is quicker than the public's eye.

The lobbyists customarily select a bill that appears quite innocent. This becomes known in the backrooms as the Christmas tree bill. It gets its nickname from the goodies that the lobbyists hang on its branches as it progresses toward a final

This year, the Christmas tree bill started through the legislative mill as a tax measure to benefit Vietnam veterans and the families of missing servicemen. But after the bill moved from the House to the Senate, it became loaded down with Christmas gifts for the lobbyists' clients.

Perhaps the most glittering ornament, worth millions in tax benefits to chemical companies, was sneaked on the branches by Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo. His amendment would permit massive depletion allowances on trona ore. This is used to produce soda ash which goes into glass and cement.

Hansen's sugarplum would delight such firms as Allied Chemical, FMC, Stauffer Chemical and Texas Gulf Corp. But it would also raise a howl from other companies for similar Christmas blessings. "It would be difficult," warns a staff memo to Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., "to resist claims by other missing firms . . .

While Senator Hansen was decorating the Christmas Tree, he added another gaudy gift for the fatcats. His second amendment would let corporations use property to redeem the stock of big stockholders in order to escape taxes.

Another bauble is being hung on the tree with White House help. This manysplendored amendment would grant special tax treatment to certain U.S. companies that do business in the Netherlands Antilles.

The approach to the White House was made by the Antilles' agent-lobbyist, Leonard Silverstein, who appropriately uses "Silvertax" as his cable address. He appealed to White House aide Deane Hinton for a letter supporting the tax concession. Without it, Silverstein warned, Exxon's big Aruba refinery might have to shut down.

Suitably softened, Hinton wrote the letter Silverstein requested. "I have been informed by the Treasury Department," wrote the presidential aide, "that it would not object" to the Antilles tax bonanza. Silverstein, of course, immediately circulated the letter to key legislators.

Both Hinton and Silverstein insisted to us that the letter was perfectly proper, although Hinton said he had thought Silverstein would use the letter "discreetly."

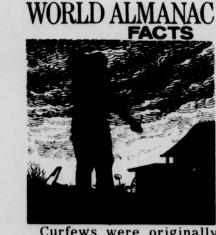

Another gift was placed under the Christmas tree by House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, who played Santa Claus to auto dealers. His tax offering would be worth $25 million a year to certain auto dealers and other employers.

Still other lobbyists have sought Christmas cheer for their clients. Among those with special baubles and spangles on the tax tree are the producers of distilled spirits and imitation cheese. When the Christmas bills come in, of course, it will be the taxpayers who must pay them. * * *

And Goldwater has given up trying to persuade the President to come clean with the public on Watergate. The two Republican powers simply aren't communicating on the same wavelength . . . Goldwater has also clashed with the President's new chief of staff, Alexander Haig. Goldwater told some House members "it is my information" that the White House asked Spiro Agnew to step down as vice president. Haig phoned Goldwater to complain he was mistaken. But Goldwater stuck by his statement as he had worded it . . .

two diamond tricks. If South had remembered Ruskin's dictum he would have cashed four clubs in order to get rid of one of his diamonds before playing that suit. Then he would come to his hand with a trump; lead a diamond; stick in dummy's nine; be a little upset when "dat old devil" East produced the ten, but not really South's precautionary measure of taking the dia-mond discard would have been unnecessary if the ten was where it appeared to be. It became necessary in view of the fact that East, not West held the card.

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Seldom erring John Wooden says Bill Walton and Monte Towe will represent the long and short of it in collegiate basketball's early battle for supremeacy Saturday.

Harness racing, which in recent years has been held four afternoons during the Fair, might be cut to two days.

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) -District Attorney Maximo Hendriquez Saladin, upon receiving a report of a secret investigation, recommended Thursday that Cesar Cedeno should be held in jail.

Cedeno, 22, the Houston Astro's star outfielder, was being held at Ensanche la Fe preventive jail in connection with the fatal shooting of Altagracia de la Cruz at a motel Tuesday morning.

Dixon guides Greyhounds past SFCC

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MOBERLY - Vernon Dixon, who traded a possible football career in for one in basketball after he suffered a serious hip injury while at Tompkins High School in Savannah, Ga., poured in 29 points, pulled off 16 rebounds and showed little if any sign of a nagging ankle injury, to lead the Moberly Greyhounds past State Fair Community College here Thursday night, 74-61. Moberly cashed in on the Roadrunners' cold spell, scoring 21 points and gaining a 37-25 lead by the half.

The crowning blow came in the second half, when four

State Fair starters fouled out of the game

The big blow came with 8:19 to go when Charles Shell, the Roadrunners' 6-7, all-region forward, was whistled for his fifth personal. He left the game with 20 points to his credit. Shell's loss opened up Moberly's inside attack even Brad Remole, a guard, as well as forwards, John Gordon and Raynard Sills, also were in double figures for the Greyhounds, who pushed their record to 8-3 with the win.

Grease on coat stymies husband

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve concerns all this talk about making things useful. If we are to try to re-use everything we can it seems the companies who put their products in glass could have tops that regular jar lids fit. This summer women could not buy jars for canning food so think how much food could have been saved and how many fewer things would have gone to the dump. I wish they would do something about this. - MRS. M.V.Z.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Leona who has trouble with a sewer odor coming in from the overflow opening in her bathroom basin. Perhaps her trap does not have a vent which should be added. This vent (a pipe, of course) acts by giving air to the trap. When the trap has no vent the water is siphoned out whenever some other bathroom appliance is used and the empty trap lets sewer gas out into the room. — A RETIRED PLUMBER.

DEAR POLLY - We had the same sewer odor problem in the bathroom of our old family home and found a broken sewer pipe in the wall that was discovered while putting in new water pipes. - E.B.

DEAR READERS - Amateurs should not fool around with such a problem. A plumber should be called and the sewer gas odor eliminated as soon as possible. - POLLY.

DEAR POLLY - May I suggest that when lighting the pilot to a gas furnace or heater than one uses a lighted candle. Its steady small flame prevents a sudden blast when. the gas comes through which sometimes takes a little while. -MRS. F.T.

DEAR POLLY - We had big problems with raccoons stealing grabage from our in-the-ground garbage can until my husband improvised a solution. He had some scrap steel in the basement so cut out a foolproof holder that caused Mr. Raccoon to leave forever. Ground posts were sunk at either side of the opening for the can and then a rod installed that goes from one post to the other and rests in the tops of the posts so it is easy to pull the rod out, insert bags of garbage and re-insert the rod. Also it is easy for the garbage collector. - HELEN.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Our car door was closed on the lower part of my wife's off-white pure cashmere coat. The dry cleaning experts say they cannot remove the resulting fourinch grease spot. Does anyone have any suggestions for removing this spot? — DOUGLAS.

Correction

In a correction late Wednesday, the Nixon Administration said its new fuel allocation program will mean a five per cent reduction in gasoline production and not 25 per cent as was first estimated. Retail gas prices nevertheless may rise by as much as seven cents a gallon. Earlier Wednesday President Nixon conferred with William Simon, head of the new Federal Energy Office. (UPI)

By CRAIG AMMERMAN Associated Press Writer

Fuel-starved utilities which operate 26 oil-fired power generating plants along the Eastern seaboard are trying to convert their generators to coal by early next year.

Under pressure of diminimize our petroleum shortages ishing oil supplies and a strongly worded telegram from federal energy chief William E. Simon, the utilities have sent buyers to Appalachia for a quantity of coal that would be sufficient to supply all the power needs of the state of Pennsylvania in any given day.

The generating plants singled out by Simon for immediate switches from oil to coal now consume 200,000 barrels a day. or about seven per cent of the the nation's estimated petroleum shortage of three million barrels daily.

The plants affected have small and large generating capacities, and generally are located away from the largest population centers in the East. Most are among the large number of power plants in the area which switched to oil in the past eight years because it was cheaper and cleaner.

Indications are that these plants which dot the seaboard from Georgia to Maine will get the 350,000 tons of coal they will need each week. But it may cost exorbitant prices, and will almost certainly result in dirtier air. Higher utility bills for household consumers could be another result.

Some utilities are being quoted $20 a ton prices if they buy now, and many in the coal industry believe the price will be $30 before long. Eastern util-series for ABC called Dead of Night, which he developed with Richard Matheson.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. Dan Curtis is not a man to mince words. When you ask him why he has chosen to make Dracula, a classic if there ever was one, he says it's because no one has ever done the story of the vampires

"No one has ever done the novel," he says. "The Bela Lugosi picture was a farce."

So Dan has done Dracula the way he thinks is right. The Richard Matheson script (Matheson wrote "Duel") is taken directly from the 19th century novel. The film was shot completely on location in Yugoslovia and England and it will be released in Europe as a feature film.

Curtis wasn't overly enthusiastic about the Christopher Lee Dracula either, calling it "garbage."

Jack Palance plays the blood-thirsty Count Dracula and Curtis, who directed and produced the film says, "He's a good actor. He is good because he contributes. I'm telling you this as a director. I come in with an idea about how I want something done but a good director has to let the actor know he can contribute. His instincts are good and he is dedicated. It also took me a year to talk him into doing this.

Curtis is TV's "horror man." He created Dark Shadows, which made ABC's daytime a popular place to visit. He also did two highly rated movies for TV. The Night Stalker and The Night Strangler, plus The Norliss Tapes. Additionally, his The Turn of the Screw with Lynn Redgrave, will be telecast by ABC later this season.

But Curtis doesn't want to be only a "horror" producer. He is working on a movie for TV with the working title of The Hunter plus a 30-minute

HONOLULU, Hawaii -Herman Wedemeyer may be the only TV actor who is using his show to further his political ambitions. He plays Duke on Hawaii Five-O but he admits he really isn't an actor.

"I consider myself first a politician," Wedemeyer says.
"I'm a member of the House of Representatives of the Hawaiian State Legislature. I'm a Democrat and I'm the assistant majority floor leader and a member of the policy committee."

The last time he ran for his position he led his ticket. It has happened before and he says there are two factors which have contributed to his popularity.

First, he believes, is the fact that he's on a big hit television show. He isn't on every week. The character of Duke appears in roughly seven out of 10 shows. But it's good enough so he calls it "a year-round campaign vehicle," and his opponents agree. In Honolulu, they have frequently asked the station that carries Hawaii Five-O for equal time.

The other factor that gives Wedemeyer a head start is his football fame. He was a big high school star in Hawaii, then went to St. Mary's in California, in the days when that college was a football power. He was a consensus All-American at halfback and went on to play two pro years one year with the old Los Angeles Dons and one year with the Baltimore Colts.

That was enough of getting banged around. He quit and went to work for Hawaiian Air Lines. For a year, he was their New York representative but he longed for his islands and came back home as soon as he could. Like most Hawaiians he is an ethnic mixture. He calls Three shows keep Brett going

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. Brett Somers is a talented, funny non-stop talking lady who, more or less, has three television series this season.

She will return, in a few eiisodes, to her role as the exwife of Jack Klugman in The Odd Couple. In real life Brett is Jack's wife. She is also on The Match Game. Then she will be seen as Gertrude. Perry Mason's receptionist on The New Perry Mason Show, one of CBS-TV's major new series offerings.

I hadn't worked in so long my head rusted." Brett said of her days of retirement in the Connecticut countryside where she was just plain Mrs. Klugman.

'We lived 60 miles from New York City and I began to get Mother-of-the-year awards. I spent all my time in the station wagon, delivering kids places. I thought I lived in the wagon."

Brett paused, very briefly, and said. "I got so bored I fired my maid so I would do housewifely duties to keep me busy and I began to study

"You know, I feel as if I should tell every lady in America, don't give up if you're over 40. I was so bored at one time when Jack was away making a film I told him that by the time he got back I probably would have killed myself, not because I was depressed but because I was so bored that it would be something to do. I sat at home and read TV listings as if they were the Bible. But the point is, if a woman is bored, there is something she can do about Brett's role in the Perry Mason show is not a part that was seen in the old series. Gertrude was an occasional voice. Brett says her mother is thrilled that she's on the series, "but she can't seem to get it through her head that Monte Markham is playing Perry. She keeps telling me endings and sad endings will how she loves Raymond Burr and how good she thinks he is in Ironside, too.

Brett stopped talking a bit and ordered lunch, which opened up another whole area of conversation. "I gave up cigarettes, so yesterday I ate things like a cheesecake and cookies and a guacamole dip although not all at the same time. I feel so guilty.

And that's the better half of half of The Odd Couple - a warm, witty woman who may have had her own moments of boredom, but who has never been guilty of boring anyone

V series is not like movie

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. There's very little similarity between the big hit movie. "Love Story," and NBC's new series by that name. Only the title remains.

George Schaefer, who is producing the series, details what he hopes to do with the show. It is, first, an athology series. In the last six or seven years, anthology series have fallen on their varied faces. Yet Schaefer is optimistic about this one's chances.

"I think," he says, "the climate may be better for anthologies now because the public has shown it likes those movies-of-the-week and, after all, they are anthologies. I recognize that the odds are against us since the public seems to like to see the same people every week."

Schaefer, long one of TV's most honored directors. was at first reluctant to take on the producer's role for this. He says when they first approached him with the idea his immediate reaction was. "Not on your life."

"I want variety in my life." he says. "I want to keep on doing what I've been doing directing on Broadway. directing feature films and television.

But NBC was persistent. Some NBC and Paramount executives cornered him. They wanted to know his objections. He laid them out. one by one.

He said he didn't want to be tied down. (They said OK, you can do it for just six months and then we'll see.)

He said he didn't want to do a series that was used to showcase pilots for future series. (OK, no pilots).

He said if he was going to do a series about love stories he wanted them to be a honest reflection of today's morality. (They said fine, and they've gone along mostly, although so far they won't let him do an interracial love story).

After running out of objections, he agreed to do it.

They, in turn, set down one condition which he says is making his life a bit difficult. All the love stories must be set in present-day America. Schaefer has always loved doing period things so this limitation is a bit frustrating.

The stories will be varied, some funny, some sad and all, hopefully. romantic. Happy be about 50-50.

Young actor at ease on stage

By JANE LANE

NEW YORK - The sign outside Creative Playthings said "Closed to the public today." Press party for Ricky Segall, newest member of TV's singing "Partridge Family," (Saturdays on ABC-TV.) I walked in with my 31/2year-old son, Matthew, and we were quickly asked if we were "press." I said "yes" and then they gave us a Creative Plaything and a button which said "I'm a Creative Plaything." Then someone wearing the same button asked who I was with and I said TV Scout. I think we looked like snuck-in shoppers who hoped to meet a star or cousins of a real-live reporter looking for a free lunch.

Matthew and I wandered farther into the long store. Silence! No joyous children laughing (though they were invited, ostensibly to query Ricky about kid things), no Ricky singing. Just adult-type males standing around eating hotdogs and hamburgers catered by Nathans whose hotdog made Coney Island famous. Or was it vice versa?

Soon we got our teeth into part of the private show. Matthew ate his hotdog and began playing with all the toys which as it turned out were to be given to the celebrity after his interviewperformance. These are toys which will appear in every press agent photo of Ricky.

Lights and mikes were set up in a room with folding chairs and a tiny stage covered with colored paper. More adults filed in and sat juggling cameras, recorders, pens and pencils, hotdogs, hamburgers and potato chips. My son was playing the xylophone and annoying everyone. I was annoyed that Ricky wasn't there. The invitation said he would be and it's tiresome to entertain a 31/2-year-old for

Then a little girl named Mel came. She was four and the two played in soon-to-be Ricky's igloo (which by then was well broken-in with sucker sticks and sticky fingermarks).

Then arrived an attractive, glib man named Cousin Brucie, New York disk jockey. He told the now restless parents and kids that Ricky had arrived, with his parents. Brucie said the parents would perform first so we could see what a musical family Ricky comes from.

TV scout reports

Remember last season's address these days you may Movie of the Week called "All My Darling Daughters?' Robert Young starred as a man whose three daughters all wound up getting married on the same day.

Well, there is going to be a sequel this season, called "My Darling Daughters' Anniversary." No one has been signed as yet but it's a good bet Robert Young will repeat his role.

Anita Gillette is causing problems on the set of Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice. The problems have nothing to do with temperament. She plays a very conservative woman on the show and clothing her is not easy. She's size 5 — and that's not a size for conservative designs.

Victor Borge recently posed for a photo with a woman and placed his arm around her. She got so excited she said, "I'm not going to take a bath for a week." Borge countered, "I'm glad I got you on the first get a puzzled look. She and her husband officially reside in a Topanga Canyon home. But that's far from the studios where she films her NBC-TV series. The Girl With Something Extra. So she and her husband are leasing a home in nearby Toluca Lake, while supervising the construction of a permanent home in Bel Air.

Enter Mommy and Daddy. Daddy looks like John Lennon and Mommy looks like a cross between France Nuyen and Brigitte Bardot. They sang one song. Brucie asked for another but they deferred to Ricky, standing in the wings.

Enter Ricky. He is 41/2, sings on key, is cute, confident, talented and in no way projects the negative image of 'child protege.'

Brucie asked Ricky, "Do you like baseball?" Yes! "Do you prefer New York girls to California girls!" "I really don't know about that." "What about ecology? Isn't it awful the way people pollute the air?" "Yes!" Then Ricky did a good imitation of a pig and some Disney characters.

Ricky looks and acts like most boys of four except for his stage presence. All told, three children were invited up "on stage" to rap with him. Though willing to go, they all froze before the lights, cameras and many strange faces. My son stuck his finger all the way down to his tonsils and said not word one (rare for him)

Ricky on the other hand is totally at ease. When Brucie or Mommy or Daddy would say "Shake hands" or "Kiss the little girl" he would do so. When Ricky didn't have an especially clever or brilliant answer to a question I didn't feel that his parents were embarrassed or were going to lock him in a closet when they got home.

At the end of the official interview he stayed on for more talk — a separate chat with a newscaster and separate pictures of him emerging, entering and being in the icky igloo. Matthew wanted to play in the igloo with him but I said "No!" was terrified he'd slug Ricky and so foul up a future empire of Ricky Segall teashirts. towels, toys, party place mats. coloring books and whatever.

Matthew greeted his father at the door that evening with "Daddy, I met a little girl and we ate lollypops and sat in an igloo.

His father asked, "Did you a little boy, too?" 'Yes.

"Did you talk to him?"

Problems facing new TV series

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. Anita Gillette is Alice, of the new TV film of Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice. It's a series that promise although everybody concerned with it is concerned about it.

"I hope it goes," Anita says. "I like Alice. I like the premise of the show. I'd like to do something with it."

They've been having problems. The basic one is that the network is not letting them do the kind of stories producer and they all actors - feel they should be

They had one script dealing with an affair Alice had before she married Ted. The network wouldn't let them use the word "virgin." Another show pulled dealt with a man who had two wives.

"I don't approve of that kind of thing," Anita says, "but, let's face it, it happens all the time. We were all set to shoot the show but, at the last minute, they made us change it. It came out that the man had one wife and one fiancee.'

the four principals were supposedly swimming naked in a pool. ABC wouldn't let them kiss — even though they were legally married.

"What it all boils down to," Anita says, "is that the basic premise of the show, which made it a little different from the usual situation comedy, is simply not being fulfilled.

What's to be done about it? Anita, a puckish person, thinks maybe love is the answer. There's a twinkle in her eyes as she explains.

"I walked on the set this morning," she said, "and we were all kind of glum because the script wasn't right. I was pretty down. Somebody suggested maybe I should fall in love — everything looks great when you're in love.

There was a script which Maybe I should. Got any plans for the rest of the week?

> As an extension of that philosophy, she has vague plans for after the series finishes shooting.

"I think maybe what I'll do," she says, "is go over to England and fall in love with a rich British person.'

Anita Gillette used to do great things on the Broadway musical stage. She says she didn't desert Broadway. It was the other way around. After she starred in "Jimmy," she says, there wasn't one offer for three years. So she decided to take her agent's advice and try Hollywood.

She did the series, Me and the Chimp, with Ted Bessell, an experience she prefers to forget. Then along came Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice, and here she is.

NEW YORK - Last year the Electric Company became the first show designed for classroom use to win an Emmy Award. Now in its third season on public television, it is being used by teachers throughout the country to reach groups of youngsters who experiencing reading difficulties.

A national study of the show's impact, conducted by Educational Testing the Service, found that children who watched the program in classroom made significant gains over nonviewers in the reading skills taught on the program.

What is behind the success of Electric Company?

Andy Ferguson, producer of the show with the Children's Television Workshop (CTW) says, "We know, through research, that kids love animation, music, puppets, so we give them all that and teach them at the same time. We don't talk down to them, either. The show talks on their level exposing the world to them from their point of view.'

1971, the Nixon administration came to terms with the enormous reading deficiencies facing the country. Youths were coming out of high school with reading abilities well below their level. So interested government officials approached CTW. The thrust was to come up with a way to use the magic box as an aid in reversing this major problem.

"We're dealing with the basic problem," says Ferguson, "that somewhere along the line the youngsters in our target audience (ages 7 to 11) are missing some puzzle pieces to help them decode, to read, to see that there is some reasonableness to these little scribbles, that they symbols with a sound.

Andrew B. Ferguson Jr.

Through live action, animation and plenty of graphics, Ferguson says they try to "create an atmosphere that's believable. graphics are there so let's look at them and point to them and ask why. This is what we're trying to teach without saying

This season, on advice from their many researchers, the vehicle is slower, but Ferguson feels "we're teaching more by teaching less. We try to give the kids a feeling of accomplishment," he says, "and to take the mystery out of reading, to show them it is a process that everyone can develop."

The Electric Company starts with the basic concept that there is a symbol to sound analysis, that when we see a certain symbol, it has a sound most of the time.

"If you see a 'ch' and pronounce it you beginning to read." says Ferguson. "When you take that 'ch' and add something to it you're reading. If we can now the reasons for this, at that it's fun doing it, maybe we can supply some of the missing puzzle pieces. Then the teacher can work along and move farther.'

This year the emphasis of the Electric Company is on finding devices to make the kids talk back and participate in the goings-on. A new segment this season will show a word and say 'This word will self-destruct in 10 seconds,' and in 10 seconds the word will disappear, compelling the kids to read it before it blows

Also, there will be more direct - to - the - camera approach. Someone will say, for instance, 'Well, Cindy out there, do you understand what he's talking about?' The aim, of course, is to get all the Cindys out there to talk back. Another innovation is a new character named 'Silent Sam.' whose inability to speak will encourage children to read the messages which appear instead of people. He will appear daily in a cliff-hanging episode. Among the talented cast members of the Electric Company are Oscar-winner Rita Moreno, Jim Boyd, Judy Graubart, Emmy- and Grammy-winner Bill Cosby, help comes occasionally from Joan Rivers, Zero Mostel and Gene Wilder who this year will do the voices for the 'Letterman' segments. The program is funded by the U.S. Office of Education and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, and

"CTW president Joan Ganz Cooney's philosophy," says Ferguson, "is that 'the money is out there and we'll try to get it for you, so just keep trying to do the best show you possibly can.' We have a very strong staff of believers," he adds, "and I think that's the

Recognition hard for Fell to find

By JOAN CROSBY HOLLYWOOD, Calif. -Norman Fell is one of those actors who generally needs an explanation after his name. His face is easily recognizable hundreds of TV shows, but still people outside of the industry don't always have his sad-eyed, basset-hound face pop into mind when his name is mentioned.

Maybe Needles and Pins will do it, as, a few years ago. 87th Precinct did it.

Needles and Pins, one of NBC-TV's new series, casts Norman as the harried head of a company which manufactures ladies' dresses in the heart of New York's jungle-like garment district. It's filmed in beautiful uptown Burbank — but that's show biz.

Norman, who was once an enthusiastic New Yorker, says he never had any garment district experience although a friend of his, a good actor who was a classmate at Penn State, wound up a dress manufacturer. "I watched his behavior. In order to survive in that field, you have to

It was a tour, with E.G. Robinson, in "Middle of the Night" that first brought Fell to California. There was an offer or two and an agent, but when the play closed, he chose to return to New York.

But it had died. All the great live TV shows were gone. I opened my apartment I had been gone for a year - and I wondered if I would ever work again. It seemed silly to stay there. I have learned to love it here and now when I go back to New York, it's difficult.'

There is hardly a kind of role that Norman hasn't played. But ask him what he would most like to do and he says. "If I had my druthers. I'd like to do two great movies a year. That way I could have time off between. I don't mind time off at all."

Because he was stagetrained, Norman likes the fact that Needles and Pins is filmed with three cameras before a live audience.
